WISCONSIN ALUMNI RESEARCH
FOUNDATION,

Plaintiff,

v.

APPLE INC.,

Defendant.

Case No. 3:14-cv-00062-WMC

APPLE INC.'S MOTION TO SEAL TRIAL DEMONSTRATIVES

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(c)(1)(G) and Paragraph 15 of the Court's Protective Order Regarding The Disclosure And Use of Discovery Materials (Dkt. No. 38), Apple Inc. ("Apple") moves for an order sealing the following trial demonstratives: DDX 3-19, DDX 3-21, DDX 3-23, DDX 2-28, DDX 2-29, DDX 2-30, and DDX 2-31.

While court proceedings are presumptively open to public view, the Supreme Court has recognized that "the common-law right of inspection has bowed before the power of a court to insure that its records" do not "serve as . . . sources of business information that might harm a litigant's competitive standing." Nixon v. Warner Commc'ns, Inc., 435 U.S. 589, 598 (1978). Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(c)(1)(G) specifically provides that, upon a showing of "good cause," the Court may enter an order "requiring that a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information not be revealed or be revealed only in a specified way." Consistent with Rule 26(c)(1)(G), the Seventh Circuit has made clear that sealing certain information may be warranted "in order to protect trade secrets or other compelling interests in secrecy." Jessup v. Luther, 277 F.3d 926, 929 (7th Cir. 2002); see also Baxter Int'l, Inc. v. Abbott Laboratories, 297 F.3d 544, 545 (7th Cir. 2002) (in appropriate circumstances, "trade secrets or other categories of bona fide long-term confidentiality" may be sealed); Methodist Hosps., Inc. v. Sullivan, 91 F.3d 1026, 1031-32 (7th Cir. 1996) ("Judicial proceedings are presumptively open, but particular information may be withheld."); Pepsico, Inc. v. Redmond, 46 F.3d 29, 31 (7th Cir. 1995) ("Legitimate trade secrets should be protected from disclosure."). Other circuits have found likewise. See, e.g., Romero v. Drummond Co., 480 F.3d 1234, 1246

(11th Cir. 2007) (“A party’s privacy or proprietary interest in information sometimes overcomes the interest of the public in accessing the information.”); Leucadia, Inc. v. Applied Extrusion Techs., Inc., 998 F.2d 157, 166 (3d Cir. 1993) (“presence of trade secrets in court records weighs against the right of access”); Woven Elecs. Corp. v. Advance Group, Inc., 1991 WL 54118, at *6 (4th Cir. May 6, 1991) (observing that multiple courts of appeal “have specifically recognized an exception to the public’s right of access when a case involves a trade secret”).

A “Trade Secret” under Wisconsin law is defined as “information, including a formula, pattern, compilation, program, device, method, technique or process to which all of the following apply: 1. The information derives independent economic value, actual or potential, from not being generally known to, and not being readily ascertainable by proper means by, other persons who can obtain economic value from its disclosure or use. [and] 2. The information is the subject of efforts to maintain its secrecy that are reasonable under the circumstances.” Wis. Stat. Ann. § 134.90(1)(c) (West).

The demonstratives that Apple seeks to seal merit protection from disclosure as trade secrets:

Apple’s Confidential Source Code. Demonstratives DDX 3-19, DDX 3-21, and DDX 3-23 contain highly confidential Apple source code. A party’s confidential source code generally constitutes sealable information. See Apple, Inc. v. Samsung Electronics Co., No. 11-CV-01846-LHK, 2012 WL 6115623, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2012) (“Confidential source code clearly meets the definition of a trade secret.”); see also Metavante Corp. v. Emigrant Sav. Bank, No. 05-CV-1221, 2008 WL 1969596, at *3 (E.D. Wis. May 5, 2008) (acknowledging that a party’s source code contained “confidential business information”). Because these demonstratives contain source code, the Court should grant Apple’s motion to seal demonstratives DDX 3-19, DDX 3-21, and DDX 3-23.

Third Party Confidential Information. Demonstratives DDX 2-28, DDX 2-29, DDX 2-30, and DDX 2-31 contain the confidential information of a third party. The underlying documents were produced by a third party and designated as confidential under the protective order entered in this case. Apple requests that the Court seal these demonstratives and allow the relevant third parties time to file declarations in support of sealing.
